

The Year In Epidemiology 2017

Our 2017 calendar of key events in epidemiology contains 120 listings, an average of 10 events per month. However, the first half of the year is favored for courses and conferences with approximately two-thirds of all the events. As usual, June is the busiest month for epidemiology events with 23 separate offerings.

2017 will provide an unusually wide range of different types of events and courses. Included on this list are:

- ▶ Criminal-Epidemiological Investigation Workshop in February
- ▶ Short course on Epidemiology in Complex Emergencies
- ▶ Conference entitled Ecology Meets Epidemiology in March
- ▶ Hitchhikers Guide to Epidemiology short course in England in May
- ▶ Real World Data Epidemiology summer school in June

Two noteworthy international meetings are the 21st World Congress of Epidemiology sponsored by the International Epidemiological Association in Saitama Japan in August and the 6th International Conference on Epidemiology and Public Health in Paris in October.

If your upcoming event is not listed here, use the submission form at <http://www.epimonitor.net/Events.htm> to include your listing in our online calendar free of charge. It will be listed on our website and featured in our EpiGram email alerts to all subscribers.

European Educational Programme in Epidemiology

30th Residential Summer Course in Epidemiology

Residential Summer Course in Epidemiology, Florence, 19 June – 7 July 2017

Contact: eepe@eepe.org and <http://www.eepe.org>

The course is intended for epidemiologists, statisticians, clinicians and public health practitioners with an interest in epidemiology. The course is taught in English and held in residential form in the “Studium” centre, Florence.

Pre-Course week, 13 June – 16 June 2017. Two independent courses on: Frontiers in causality in epidemiology: Exposome, and GIS (Geographic Information Systems) in Epidemiology.

Week 1, 19 June – 23 June 2017. Epidemiological methods I: Basic principles and introduction to study design.

Statistical methods in epidemiology I: Basic principles.

Week 2, 26 June – 30 June 2017. Epidemiological methods II: Case-control and cohort studies.

Statistical methods in epidemiology II: Analysis of cross-sectional and case-control studies. Computer analysis of epidemiological data.

Week 3, 3 July – 7 July 2017. Nine special Modules: Advanced statistical topics. Genetic epidemiology. Advanced topics in epidemiology. From epidemiology to the burden of disease. Uncertainty, risk communication and epidemiology. Clinical epidemiology. Aetiological epidemiology. Environmental epidemiology. Concepts and methods in causal mediation analysis.

Evening Distinguished Lectures: Rodolfo Saracci. Manolis Kogevinas and Debbie Lawlor

Join the Research Team at the UNM Comprehensive Cancer Center

Join our team of world-class physicians and scientists in the heart of the Southwest. The University of New Mexico Comprehensive Cancer Center is one of the nation's 47 NCI-Designated Comprehensive Cancer Centers. Our 130 board-certified oncology physicians treat multiethnic patients from throughout New Mexico who have strikingly different patterns of cancer incidence, mortality and disparity. Supported by almost $60 million in annual research funding, our vibrant team of 130 population, basic, translational, and clinical investigators are focused on discovering the causes and cures for these cancers, with outstanding research programs in cancer control and disparities; cancer genetics and genomics with community and clinical translation; cancer cell and systems biology; and cancer drug discovery and targeted therapeutics.

Join the BEST in New Mexico, and enjoy a lifestyle with wonderful cultural amenities in Albuquerque and Santa Fe in the southern chain of the Rocky Mountains: hiking, skiing, biking, golfing, ballooning, arts and culture, a mild climate, and 310 days of sunshine a year.

Cancer Molecular or Genetic Epidemiology

Seeking scientists with interest and expertise in genomics and epigenetics relevant to cancer population science, assessment of gene-environment interactions, genetic ancestry and genetic risk assessment in complex multi-ethnic populations, molecular epidemiology laboratory methods, and assessing and overcoming cancer health disparities in New Mexico's Hispanic and American Indian populations. Also seeking scientists with interest and expertise in translating science to those cancers which show significant disparities in our multiethnic populations: gastrointestinal and hepatobiliary cancers, renal cancers, breast and gynecologic malignancies, hematologic malignancies, and melanoma. NYU

COLLEGE OF GLOBAL PUBLIC HEALTH

Chair (at the Rank of Professor)
Department of Epidemiology / College of Global Public Health (CGPH)
New York University

The College of Global Public Health (CGPH) at New York University is seeking applications for the position of Chair, Department of Epidemiology. The CGPH seeks candidates of exceptional leadership, innovation and vision to lead the Department and build its academic and research enterprise here in NYC and throughout New York University's key Global Network University (GNU) campuses and study away sites (3 portal campuses and 11 global academic centers in Africa, South America, China, Australia, Europe and the Middle East).

The Chair will serve as a key member of the management team and is responsible for assuring the quality and growth of programs in her or his academic spheres in collaboration with departmental faculty. The Chair will demonstrate a broad understanding in the key content and methodological areas of the department and will possess exemplary research and academic achievements, strategic leadership ability, strong interpersonal and communication skills, and an entrepreneurial spirit. The Chair will work with faculty and staff to develop department vision; nurture, recruit and develop high-performance faculty; maintain an atmosphere conducive to collaboration and transparency; and work with other leaders of CGPH to realize the mission of the college. The successful candidate will be a well-established scholar, with a strong record of securing external funding, who has a commitment to contributing to the development and application of novel epidemiological methods by working with an interdisciplinary faculty. Finally, and equally as importantly, the individual will possess a demonstrated ability to foster the educational mission of the department.

Requirements: (1) doctoral degree or equivalent in one of the following areas: epidemiology, biostatistics, public health, or a related health or social science field; (2) strong and established record of scholarly achievement; and (3) administrative experience in a university or other research setting.

CGPH offers academic degrees at the undergraduate, masters and doctoral levels. The undergraduate program includes 10 joint majors where students study public health with other relevant subjects. The CEPH-accredited Master of Public Health degree allows students to obtain an MPH in one of eight concentrations. There is also a full-time, one-year Cross-Continental MPH program. Finally, students receive doctoral (PhD) level training in one of three concentration areas. In addition to these programs of study, a fully online Advanced Certificate in Public Health and Applied Global Public Health Certificate have also recently been launched.

NYU has an extensive global network of teaching and research sites throughout the world, known collectively as the Global Network University (GNU). This unique arrangement allows CGPH faculty to establish training and degree programs as well as research efforts worldwide; offers faculty and students truly unique opportunities to engage in their research and study around the world; and informs public health practice both locally and globally through the exchange of knowledge.

Applicants must apply online and submit

- Cover letter addressing candidate's qualifications with regard to the responsibilities of the Chair
- Curriculum vitae
- 3 recent publications
- Complete contact information for 5 references
- Link to apply: <http://apply.interfolio.com/38887>

USC University of Southern California

Tenure Track Assistant / Associate Professor

The Division of Biostatistics in the Department of Preventive Medicine at the University of Southern California (USC) is recruiting to fill a tenure-track position at the level of Assistant or Associate Professor. We seek an accomplished biostatistician with an outstanding academic record and an innovative research program to become part of an active and growing research group. We seek someone with the ability, desire, and flexibility to develop novel statistical methods spanning a wide range of topics in the ever-changing research landscape. Examples of current projects include a Program Project to develop novel analytical approaches and tools for integrated genomics analysis, and a separate research program investigating environmental influences on child health, including life course trajectories, exposure windows in a multi-pollutant framework, and integrated analysis of “omic” data. The Department also has an active graduate and undergraduate educational mission and the successful candidate will have the opportunity to participate in teaching activities. Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, a brief summary of research accomplishments and future goals, and contact information for three references to dconti@usc.edu.

Biostatistician Teaching Faculty

The Department of Preventive Medicine of the Keck School of Medicine of USC is seeking an experienced biostatistician with an interest in a full-time position in education. The position is within the non-tenure track and will be at a rank appropriate for the experience of the faculty member. Areas of focus for teaching include general biostatistical methods, data analysis with focus on both simple and multivariate models, application of biostatistical methods to complex data sets using a variety of software programs (e.g. SAS, Stata, SPSS, R), and probability and statistical theory. Teaching responsibilities would focus on courses in our graduate program in biostatistics (master’s and Ph.D.), but could also include data-analysis courses within our MPH and undergraduate programs. While the emphasis is on education, limited time could be available for collaborative research. Candidates should have a doctoral degree in biostatistics or a related field and teaching experience in one or more academic training programs. Research and consulting experience, particularly involving the application of biostatistical methods to the analysis of data from a health-related field, is desirable.

THE UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH
GRADUATE SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH
DEPARTMENT OF EPIDEMIOLOGY
POST-DOCTORAL T32 FELLOWSHIP IN CARDIOVASCULAR EPIDEMIOLOGY

Sponsored by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, this program provides opportunities for training in vascular aging, women's health, high risk populations (e.g. diabetes), and international health. A special feature is the availability of experience in subclinical vascular measures. It includes didactic training in public health epidemiology, as well as practical experience in epidemiologic and prevention-based studies.

The standard post-doctoral fellowship duration is 2 years with a stipend commensurate with level of training and other benefits. We are committed to increasing representation of underrepresented minorities in this fellowship program. We are currently accepting applications for one open position. Application and eligibility information can be obtained at <http://www.cvdtraining.pitt.edu/>.

Assistant / Associate/ Full Professor of Epidemiology

The UCLA Jonathan and Karin Fielding School of Public Health is undertaking a search for a state-funded tenure-track or tenured Assistant / Associate/ Full Professor of Epidemiology (<https://epi.ph.ucla.edu>).

We seek an outstanding candidate with a strong track record and dedication to teaching epidemiologic methods and who is recognized as a distinguished scholar in epidemiology. The candidate will have an active research portfolio and a history of successful external funding. Since its inception, the UCLA Department of Epidemiology has established itself as a leader in epidemiologic theory and methods, applied epidemiology, and public health. We are looking for a candidate with dedication for teaching and training the next generation of epidemiologists in areas such as, but not limited to, risk modeling, prediction, causal inference, and big data analyses.

The Fielding School of Public Health is located on the main UCLA campus in direct proximity to the other health sciences schools (Medicine, Dentistry, and Nursing), several professional schools, and the College of Letters and Science. The UCLA community has a strong history of and commitment to interdisciplinary research and collaboration. The Department also has strong research and training relations with the Los Angeles County Department of Public Health and national and international institutions.

Successful candidates must have a doctoral degree in Epidemiology or equivalent training, a strong track record in teaching and training of pre- and/or post-doctoral students, peer-reviewed publications, and a demonstrated commitment to public health. Faculty appointment level and salary will be commensurate with the candidate's experience and qualifications.

The deadline for applications to be submitted is February 1, 2017 but the search remains open until the position is filled. The anticipated start date is July 1, 2017. INFORMAL INQUIRIES MAY BE SUBMITTED TO EPISearch@PH.UCLA.EDU.

The UCLA Jonathan and Karin Fielding School of Public Health is undertaking a search for a state-funded tenure-track or tenured Assistant/Associate/Full Professor of Epidemiology (<https://epi.ph.ucla.edu>).

We seek an outstanding candidate with an active research portfolio in non-communicable disease epidemiology (preferably in the areas of cardiovascular and/or metabolic disease, obesity, or aging epidemiology) and a history of successful external funding, consistent with career stage. The successful candidate should have a strong track record and dedication to teaching epidemiologic methods in his or her specialty area and beyond. Since its inception, the UCLA Department of Epidemiology has established itself as a leader in epidemiologic theory and methods, applied epidemiology, and public health. We are looking for a candidate with excellence in research and dedication to train the next generation of epidemiologists. The candidate should have experience with applied public health, epidemiologic field work, and establishing of prevention programs.

The Fielding School of Public Health is located on the main UCLA campus in direct proximity to the other health sciences schools (Medicine, Dentistry, and Nursing), several professional schools, and the College of Letters and Science. The UCLA community has a strong history of and commitment to interdisciplinary research and collaboration. Department of Epidemiology and Population Health

Position: Associate/Full Professor of Epidemiology

Description: The Department of Epidemiology and Population Health in the School of Public Health and Information Sciences at the University of Louisville, is seeking applicants for a tenured/tenure-track Associate/Full professor position, beginning Fall 2017. Candidates for senior positions should have a strong record of peer-reviewed publications and extramural funding as a principal investigator. Applicants must have a doctoral degree in epidemiology or public health sciences with a concentration in epidemiology. Applicants with a degree in a closely related field may be considered if they have at least 5 to 10 years of direct experience in epidemiology, depending upon rank.

Candidates should be willing to collaborate within the department as well as within the school and university. All areas of expertise within epidemiology will be considered. The Department of Epidemiology and Population Health has established M.P.H., M.S., and Ph.D. curricula. Disciplinary strengths include environmental, occupational, community-based approaches to epidemiologic research, genetic, molecular, cancer, and reproductive epidemiology. We are seeking individuals interested in the challenges and opportunities associated with joining a small but growing department.

The University of Louisville, founded in 1798, is a state supported research university located in Kentucky's largest metropolitan area. The School of Public Health and Information Sciences is a fully accredited School of Public Health, and shares the downtown Health Sciences Campus with the Schools of Medicine, Dentistry, and Nursing as well as the Greater Louisville Department of Health and Wellness.

Interested candidates should apply online at <http://www.louisville.edu/jobs>, Position ID 32457. In addition please email: an updated curriculum vitae, a letter of interest including a statement of research interests, and a list of three references to: Kristina Zierold, Ph.D., Chair of Search Committee, Department of Epidemiology and Population Health, School of Public Health and Information Sciences, University of Louisville, 485 East Gray St., Louisville, KY 40292, kmzier02@louisville.edu.

SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH AND TROPICAL MEDICINE

Tenure Track Assistant Professor Positions in Genomic Epidemiology or Clinical Research in Cardiovascular Disease and Obesity/Nutrition

The Department of Epidemiology at the Tulane University School of Public Health and Tropical Medicine and the Tulane University Translational Sciences Institute are seeking outstanding applicants for tenure-track assistant professor positions in the clinical, translational, or genomic research in cardiometabolic diseases or obesity/nutrition. The Tulane University Translational Sciences Institute has been funded by the NIH to provide 50% salary support and substantial research funds to promising junior faculty investigators in clinical, translational, or genomic research in cardiometabolic disease. Candidates with training and research experience in clinical research/trials, nutrition, and genomics/trans-omics are encouraged to apply. There are several large on-going clinical trials and observational epidemiological studies at Tulane University Health Sciences Center. We offer a supportive environment for faculty to participate in these funded studies or develop new projects. Qualifications for Assistant Professor candidates include a doctoral degree in epidemiology/genetic epidemiology/nutritional epidemiology or MD with epidemiology training, post-doctoral experience, demonstrated potential to establish independent research programs, evidence of excellence in teaching, and interest in collaborative research. The Assistant Professors will be required to conduct independent/collaborative research, teach graduate courses, and provide academic service as needed.

Review of applications will begin as soon as possible and applications will be accepted and reviewed until the position is filled. Applicants should send a cover letter, complete resume, and at least three letters of recommendation to: Jiang He, MD, PhD, Tulane University School of Public Health and Tropical Medicine, 1440 Canal Street, New Orleans, LA 70112. E-mail Address: jhe@tulane.edu. All applicants for faculty positions in Cardiovascular or Genomic Epidemiology should apply electronically via the following link: <http://apply.interfolio.com/34593>. All applicants for faculty positions in Obesity/Nutrition Epidemiology should apply electronically via the following link: <http://apply.interfolio.com/34063>.
